Senior Spotlight Brett Hovis

By Dakota Isenman

Brett Hovis is the son of Edward and Michelle Hovis. Brett has one older brother, Evan Hovis, who is 21 and married to wife, Rebecca. Brett's plans after high school are focused mainly on farming. He said that "Most importantly I plan to work hard, do my best, and let God lead the way." Brett also plays the banjo, and the guitar as hobbies. He is in a bluegrass gospel group called Pumpkin River, with his parents and brother. Brett's advice to underclassmen is "What you do in life echoes an eternity, so live what you believe." Brett will miss his friends and annoying his teachers the most.

Gregory Signs with Central Methodist University to play Volleyball

By Kiara Cato and Kaitlin Martin

On February 13, 2018, Julia Gregory signed a letter of intent with CMU. She got accepted on December 22, 2017 into Central Methodist University, a college in Fayette, Missouri, on a scholarship to play volleyball. CMU is a private university, and their mascot is the Eagles. Julia is planning to go there for a total of four years and major in pre-medicine. She'll be starting her college career this coming August and will miss seeing her family and hanging out with her friends while she is gone.
